Many Are Injured In A Fire At Wichita, Kansas

WICHITA, Kans., Feb. 5.—At least thirty persons were injured, some of them so seriously that they are not expected to live, and four others are believed dead in an early morning blaze today which wiped out the ghetto building, one of Wichita's landmarks.

Flames were first discovered shortly after three a. m., and escape by firemen was impossible. Many of the occupants of the burning building slid down ropes to safety. Thirty-six apartments composed the upper three stories of the building. In these apartments a majority of the dwellers were reported to be aged, some of them feeble.

Four persons believed missing, were seen to appear at windows, it is said, and then disappeared.

French Extend Occupation To 2 More German Towns

DUESSELDORF, February 5.—(By the Associated Press)—The French occupation has been extended to Offenbach and Appenweier, two towns in Baden, presumably as a penalty for German interference with international train service between Paris and Prague.

In German quarters, it is declared that this latest move of the French has as its real goal the Keht bridgehead opposite Strassburg. This would give the French control of the railways along the right bank of the Rhine.

There was little change over the week-end in the general industrial situation. The railway workers are being offered cash bonuses in an effort to revive the strike. The communists, on their part are active in encountering such moves with declarations that the German capitalists who refuse to fulfill the French demands has led to the entire situation should suffer confiscation of their property.

Twelve Perish In Tidal Wave In Hawaii

HONOLULU, February 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Inhabitants of Hilo, Island of Hawaii continued today to take stock of the results of tidal waves which swept their district Saturday afternoon with an estimated loss of ten or twelve lives and property damage.

The known dead today included a child and three Japanese fishermen. It was believed however, that others perished. Several days probably will be required to ascertain the total damage. The tidal wave followed a severe earthquake which the observatory at Kilanea reported to have occurred from 2,000 to 3,000 miles away in an unknown direction.

Persons living in lower Hilo, fearing a recurrence of the tidal waves moved to higher ground with all their possessions yesterday.

It seemed improbable today that a reply would be obtained from messages of inquiry to the Fiji Island regarding earthquake conditions there.

CAPITOL JOKE

By John E. Baker
U. S. Representative From California, Second District

THE difference between theoretical knowledge and practical is illustrated by the story of the farmer who wandered into a chemical laboratory. He found several young chemists busy with reports and test tubes.

"What are you trying to do?" he asked.

"We're endeavoring," replied one of the students, condescendingly, "to discover or invent a universal solvent."

"What's that?" asked the farmer.

"A liquid that will dissolve anything."

"That's a great idea," agreed the farmer. "When you find it what you gonna keep it in?"

BLOOMINGTON, IND., February 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Miss Esther Beck, 26, daughter of James K. Beck, former superintendent of the schools here, who disappeared from her home Thursday, was found in a corn field yesterday, eight miles from her home, but died before aid arrived.

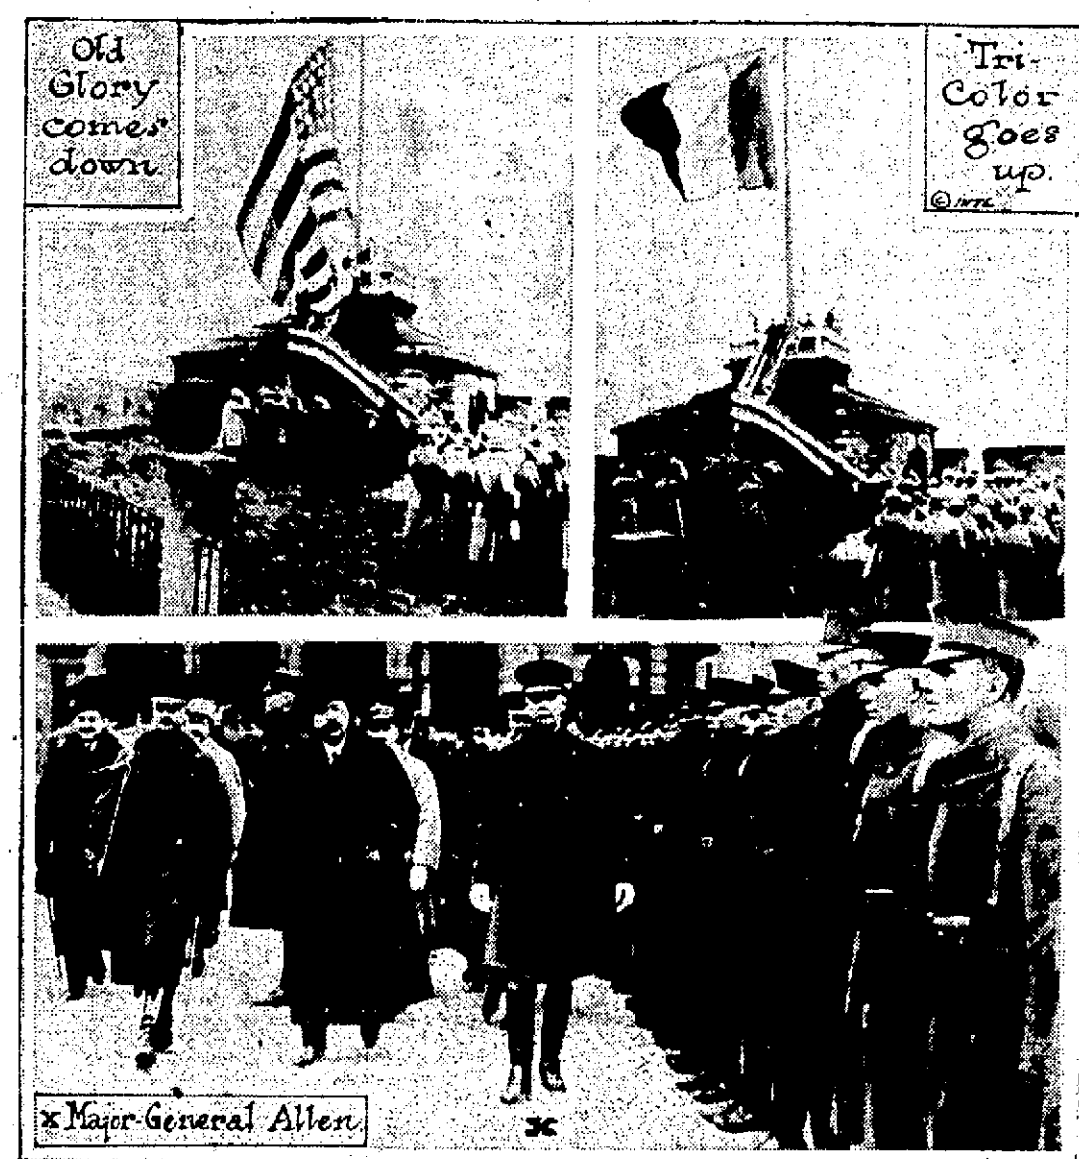

Miss Beck was found by Melvin Reeves, a farmer, when he heard the girl's screams. After finding the young woman Reeves summoned aid, but when he returned with assistance the girl was dead, apparently from exposure.

For several days searching parties have hunted for Miss Beck. She recently suffered a nervous breakdown and it is believed that her mind had been affected.

Warmer Temperature For The Ohio Valley

COLUMBUS, O., February 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Slowly rising temperature and snow will follow Ohio's cold wave of Saturday and Sunday night, according to the forecast made this morning by the Weather Bureau. The forecast reads:

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—A slight break in the cold wave is due late today and tomorrow through the Ohio Valley and Lake region of New York and New England, according to the weather bureau which predicts slowly rising temperatures accompanied by snow. The cold snap centered at White River, Ontario, where a temperature of fifty degrees below zero was reported this morning. It is expected however to sweep down the South Atlantic coast.

CHICAGO, February 5.—(By the Associated Press)—While the north-west and central west had relief today from the cold wave that sent the temperatures to new low levels for the season, the southern states were suffering from the coldest weather in several years, attended in some districts by snow, sleet or rain. Britain Angered At France Over Lausanne Tactics

American Observer Seeks To Patch Breach
LAUSANNE, February 5.—(By the United Press)—Richard Washburn Child, American observer at the Lausanne conference, brought to bear all possible influence on the Turkish delegation today, to persuade them to sign the peace treaty. There was some optimism that the party might be resumed through the American ambassador's efforts, but the French followed the example of the British and left Lausanne after Ismet Pasha had definitely refused to agree to the allies' terms. Ambassador Child offered mediation and was in conference with Turkish delegates.

Feeling Between The French And British Bad

LONDON, February 5.—(By the United Press)—British air forces will bomb Angora, the capital of Turkey, if the Turks attack Mosul, it was understood today as plans of the war office and the cabinet in the Near East crisis were partially disclosed. It is stated authoritatively that the situation created by Turkey's recalcitrance and Marquis Curzon's withdrawal from Lausanne, is extremely serious.

The situation between Britain and France is described as bad. The Bonar Law government is increasingly angry at the French because of Poincaré's vote to Angora saying the French would continue to negotiate with Ismet Pasha despite a British ultimatum. The cabinet is expected to meet tomorrow after which it is likely Marquis Curzon will send a note to Paris and Rome regarding British views which is believed to be the international conference should be re-opened.

Plan Flight Of Endurance

DAYTON, February 5.—(By the United Press)—Lieutenants John A. Macready and Oakley Kelly, veterans of the United States army air service, turned up the transport T-2 today for the second attempt to smash the world's endurance record. Russians Warn Turkey

MOSCOW, February 5.—(By the Associated Press)—The relations between Russia and Turkey are threatened with a rift if the Angora government executes the communists recently arrested there, the semi-official Pravda hints. Under the heading "Don't Go Too Far," M. Kemal and Company, "The newspaper predicts that some day Turkey may need the support of Russia and says: 'Let her not while it support is not forthcoming in the event that the Kemalists persecute the communists.'"

Growsome Crime Solved

DAYTON, O., February 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Police say that with the arrest early this morning of Roy Garrison, in a hotel on the Findlay street dump, that one of the most gruesome crimes in the annals of crime in Dayton has been solved within a few hours after the deed was committed.

Thomas Hinner, in charge of the dump, reported to the police early today that a man with his head knocked, was dead in a wagon on the dump. Within a short time Garrison, who is a giant of a man, was found in the hotel, quizzed and confessed, according to police.

He was covered with blood and in rags and had $3 in his pockets. He said he thought the dead man, who has been identified, was trying to rob him, and that he slew him with an axe last night, police say.

No Desire For Hostilities

LAUSANNE, February 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Ismer Pasha, head of the Turkish delegation, informed the correspondent today that Turkey had no desire to resume hostilities with either Greece or Britain as a result of the collapse of the Near East conference, but he said that the Turks and English armies were still facing each other in Asia Minor.

Ismer said the Turks would ask the powers whether they consider the negotiations officially at an end. The impression prevailed among the conference delegates that Turkey would not be informed officially of the termination of the negotiations inasmuch as it was generally desired to continue the Mideast armistice, thus avoiding the possible renewal of war. The entire French delegation planned to leave for Paris early this afternoon.

The Turks will probably depart tomorrow. It is believed that the misunderstanding which developed between the British and French delegations in the last days of the conference contributed to the final break, as the Turks got the idea that they could count upon a split among the allies and obtain more favorable conditions.

British Paper Scores Curzon

LONDON, February 5.—(By the Associated Press)—An exception to the almost universal chorus of press condemnation of the Turkish stand at Lausanne was afforded today by the Daily Mail, which recast a date edition to launch a vehement editorial attack upon Lord Curzon defending the Turks. The article says that the conference failed because the allied delegates refused to recognize the reasonable Ottoman demands.

"Lord Curzon has haggled, bickered, heckled and donkeyheaded," the newspaper continues, "and through his error of judgment Great Britain has thrown away a great chance of bringing peace to Eastern Europe and Western Asia. . . . The Turks seem to have behaved with prudence and restraint and to have made concessions after concessions.

"The British negotiators are re turning under the cloud of a humiliating blunder."

Deplored In France

PARIS, Feb. 5.—(By the A. P.)—The failure of the near east conference is deplored in Paris but is not taken as too much of a tragedy.

Quoting Ismer Pasha's remark that he considered the conference still on, Petit Parisien maintains that there is still hope that conversations will be renewed elsewhere with more success. Petit Parisien, in the Echo d'Paris, attributes the failure at Lausanne to the feeble attitude of the allies last September and October.

Le Matin declares:
"In view of the clearly pacific intentions Premier Poincare has proclaimed lately, it would be surprising if he did not go the limit of possible conciliation to avoid France being drawn into a deplorable adventure."

Not Complete Rupture

PARIS, February 5.—(By the Associated Press)—The French government is awaiting the return of the head of its delegation to the Near East conference before commenting officially on the Lausanne developments, but considers meantime that the break up ought not to be considered a complete rupture of the negotiations for peace in the Near East.

Norma Talmadge and Conway Tearle in "The Eternal Flame"

Norma Talmadge in Her Latest and Greatest Picture Will Be Presented For Four Days At The Columbia Starting Today

"The Eternal Flame," a magnificent picture of Honor, Balzac's "La Duchesse de Langeais," with Norma Talmadge in the most poignant stirring vehicle she has yet graced with her beauty and charm. Is the extraordinary First National attraction this week at the Columbia for four days starting today.

The story revolves about the petty jealousies, scandals and romances of the Court of Louis XVIII, with the beautiful duchess as the outstanding figure.

Miss Talmadge as the duchess reaches the heights of her wonderfully successful career; as the heartless court favorite, she is elusive; as the woman whose true love is doubted and forewarned, she is a most magnetic, appealing figure.

General de Montreuil, masterfully portrayed by Conway Tearle, kidnaps the duchess, believing her profound love to be a mockery, and in his rage prepares to brand her as a woman to be shunned. But he cannot bring himself to mar her beauty. He frees her. She writes him daily, but her letters are returned unopened. In despair she decides to quit the world forever and go into the seclusion of a convent. De Montreuil learns her love is genuine and arrives at the convent just as she was about to take her final vows that would have closed its walls about her for life. The happy reunion of the lovers is an exquisite finish to this production.

Filmed on a magnificent scale with all the splendor and fine trappings of the early eighteenth century, with hundreds of players appearing in the scenes, "The Eternal Flame" may well be termed a motion picture masterpiece. An unusually well balanced cast of artists, in addition to Conway Tearle, is seen in support of Miss Talmadge.

Adolphe Jean Menjou gives a particularly fine characterization as the Duc de Langeais, while Rosemary Theby makes an admirable Madame de Serizy. Wedgehead Novell is seen as Marquis de Montmoreilles, Kate Lester as Princess de Vlamont-Chauray, Thomas Ricketts as Viscount de Pander, Irving Cummings as Comte de Marsay and Otis Harlan as Abbe Gourmand.

The production was personally directed by Frank Lloyd, and without doubt is the finest screen achievement.

Taking advantage of the absence of the family for a brief spell shortly after the noon hour Sunday a sneak thief entered the apartments of Attorney Harry W. Miller and family in the Kelwert flat building, Fifth street, and made a safe get-away with loot valued at $200, consisting principally of various articles of jewelry, including two diamond earrings, gold watch and chain. The intruder also donned Mr. Miller's new brown overcoat and wore it away, evidently needing the garment to protect himself from the winter blasts. The robbery was discovered by members of the family on their return home shortly after one o'clock from a call when it was noticed that various articles about the household had been disarranged and an investigation disclosed that dresser drawers had been ransacked and that the jewelry had been taken. The police were promptly notified and the officers who responded set to work on the case but so far have been unable to get a trace of the culprit.

Attorney Wilson was standing on Main street in front of Elliott's book store talking to Rev. Why Colds Lead to Pneumonia

When a cold is neglected it attacks the lining of the breathing passages — then may be pneumonia. Father John's Medicine treats colds and helps to prevent pneumonia because it nourishes the system and drives out the poisonous waste matter — any other way of treating a cold is likely to lead to pneumonia. Not a "cough syrup" or "hack" depending upon dangerous and weakening drugs, but a food medicine and body builder.

Miss Dolly Wise

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, woes, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, N. H.

Dear Dolly—I am a bride of a few months and I would like for you to settle a dispute my husband and I are having. We are not quarreling, just arguing or disputing and I think I have the better of the argument. Well to make a long story short, we got married, went in debt for most of our furniture and have a small bank account, not exceeding $50, so far as I know. I have been getting along on the wardrobe I had when I got married and haven't bought a new thing since. I am only 19 and I don't think you will find many girls of my age willing to do that, so I save a little and help my husband pull out of debt. I don't want to be contrary or anything but here is where we disagree. My husband has escaped the flu but he has got the cold fever, and he has set his heart on buying a little roadster. 1917 model at $75, and right here is where I balked. I think we should do without a machine until we are out of debt. Don't you think I am right? He wants to buy a car for $50 out of the bank and apply it to his old driver and go in debt for balance. Now what if something would happen to one of us gets sick we would not have a thing to go on. I think everyone should have a little laid aside for an emergency, don't you? If he is so determined to buy a car I would rather have a new one, as the upkeep would not cost so much, it will spend all he makes trying to keep up repairs on an old machine and besides being ashamed to ride in it. Dolly please tell me what you think about the matter.

YOUNG WIFE.
I think you are right. Your husband has no business buying an old worn out machine until he has his debts paid, or can afford a better one. Still if every one waited until they could afford to buy a machine they could never have one, and the factories would have to go out of business. If you will just take a mental inventory of your friends and acquaintances who have automobiles you will soon discover that half of them can't afford to own a car, and if they waited until they could afford one they would never have one. Seventy-five dollars is not very much for a car if it is in pretty good shape, but when you consider that it is eight years behind the times, it is not worth much. Then too, if it is not running for eight years it must be pretty well used up. As you say I would rather have a new one, or a later model in a used car, than a 1917 beat. If your husband has a good job, and can keep up the payments on everything, and have a little left for a rainy day, you might as well let him get some kind of a car. If he is determined to have one, you will get a lot of pleasure out of it during the coming summer and when you are out riding you are not spending money for anything else.

Dear Dolly—Please inform me what to use to remove fumed oak stain from old furniture in order to apply walnut finish. Also does your coin book give value of pennies bought?

NEW BOSTON READER.
You can buy a varnish remover at a paint store that will do the work for you. They will also advise you what to use to produce a walnut finish. Oil paint and varnish can be removed with a solution of lye, and also by applying the following mixture: Take equal portions of soda and quicklime, and apply to the old paint with a brush. A few moments should be sufficient to remove the old coats of paint, which may be washed off with hot water. There is nothing in my coin book about the 2 cents mentioned, but I don't imagine they are worth any more than their face value, since they were coin d as late as 1909.

Dear Dolly—I have a girl, living out in Missouri and I went out there to see her and when I started home she did not tell me and to go with any other girls so I want to know if it will be all right to go with them. I know a girl living in New Boston that I think real cute that I would like to go with, but of course I intend to marry the girl in Missouri when she is 17. Please give me your advice. A TRUE LOVER.

If you were a true lover you would not have written this letter, and you would not have your eye on another girl. Since you are undecided about the matter I think it would be all right to go with the girl in New Boston occasionally and see what you think about her. The girl in Missouri is too young for you anyway.

Dear Dolly—To settle an argument please tell me if Zane Gray is a man or woman. Also who took the part of the "Primitive Lover" at the Columbia recently.

SKEEZICKS.
Zane Gray is a man. Haven't you read any of his books? Harrison Ford played the part of the "Primitive Lover." Call up the office and they will give you the other information you ask about.

Dear Dolly—What do you think of a girl chum who tries to take every man you get away from you. Every man I have ever started to go with him has pushed in and had dates with him, too, and then made all manner of fun of him to his back. She pretends to be my friend but she takes my heart and then when she goes with them a few times she turns them down and rams some one else.

R. A. M.
She must be SOME dapper. If she can ramp the whole village. However if she is a real chummy chum, she may think it is her duty to help you entertain your friends, and is going with them to help you along, and not trying to ramp them. The fact that she only goes with them a few times shows that she does not want them.

Dear Dolly—I happen to know four girls who chum around together a bit and two of them are real nice girls, or at least I think they are, and two are not. Now Dolly I would like for you to tell the nice girls not to run around with the other two as they are being talked about, and are liable to become like the others, who are what people say "making themselves common." I would not have anything to do with girls who make themselves common by going with any kind of a man that comes along and doing other disrespectful things. I would like to get these other girls away from bad company as I think they are all right but do not know any better. Dolly, what can I do about it? I know all four girls and think lots of two of them.

NICE YOUNG MAN.
Since you know the girls, why don't you give them some "motherly" advice. What I would say through this department would not have the desired effect, as they would not apply the advice to themselves. I think however, that the girls you have in mind know who they are, chasing around with. Girls are not so green in this day and age that they don't know everything that is worth knowing. They just don't care, and that's that.

Dear Miss Wise—I have a tan khaki dress and I have some ink spots in it. Could you please tell me what would take them out. I don't want to spoil the dress and I thought you might tell me something so I don't make a fool of myself. Also please tell me how to get it out of a red wool sweater.

THANK YOU.
There are various ways of removing ink, among these are to soak the stain in sweet milk, then wash with soap and water; wash in turpentine or gasoline; wash with a laundry soap; salts of lemon will remove mild ink stains.

A CLOSE OBSERVER—They have sanitary inspectors for the places named, but an inspector could not prevent what you saw, unless they could camp on their trail all day and half the night, and you know there are not enough to do that. Things like that are done all over the country, and will continue to be done until the end of time, because of the kind of people who do that kind of work. Worth while people, and those who would care, are not found in places like that.

THANK YOU—I don't know who has the agency you inquired about. He is not very progressive or he would run an advertisement in the paper letting his customers know where to get his goods. It is not up to me to keep them posted.

Adventures Of The Twins

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

One day the telephone in the hickory tree postoffice rang at rang. Nick answered it.
"Hello, who is this?" asked a voice, although it should have said, "Who is that?"
"It's Nick, the Twin," answered Nick.
"Do you wish to speak to Mr. Stamps, the postmaster?"
"Oh, no, you'll do," answered the voice. "This is Mr. Whale out in the ocean. I couldn't come, so I thought I would telephone. I wish they would move the Fairland postoffice out to the ocean instead of keeping it on dry land all the time. We have to depend on the sea-gulls to carry our letters and they are the gossipiest things and tell everything they know. I want to send a valentine to the squid and I don't wish anyone to know it. Could you please take it for me?"
"Certainly," said Nick dutifully. "I'll be right over."
"I'll be waiting near the light-house," answered the whale.
Nick arrived at the ocean in just a little while, having his Magic Green Stones on and sure enough, there was Mr. Whale holding a letter in his mouth. "Here it is," he said at once. "My friends helped me write it or I never could have done it. The sea urchin wrote it with one of his quills and the cuttlefish supplied the ink. Read it, will you, and see how it sounds."

So Nick unfolded the paper and read:
"The little squid so sweet and small, Would you were forty times as tall, Then I should say you'd be just right. To satisfy my appetite."
"I do not care for fish at all. No matter if they're great or small, Of herring, cod, and snail and pike, There's not one that I really like."

"Of all the creatures in the sea, You have the sweetest taste for me. Oh, little squid with flavor true, I'd so won't you be my valentine?"

"It's very nice," said Nick. "I'll take it at once."
So off he flew to the little squid's house. And the squid read it, "Humph!" said she. "Valentine indeed! It's just a polite way of asking me to be his meat-ticket. No, thank you."

MARRIAGE A LA MODE

The wedding eve, or Potpourri, as it is called, is a very noisy, joyful affair in Germany. After a dinner, to which the couple's relatives and friends are invited, is an evening of entertainment consisting of short plays, operettas or charades; then a dance.
Just before the guests leave, every article of crockery or glass is broken and cast out of the house. This is supposed to bring good luck.

As To Selections At Kline's

It is a generally recognized fact, that one finds a wider selection of smart and beautiful apparel at the KLINE SALONS, than one is likely to find elsewhere.

And in view of the present new era of Lower Prices and Better Values, a definite statement of this store's position is decidedly appropos:

KLINE PRICES are noticeably low, but the lowness in price, great as it is, does not by any means represent the real increase in value of KLINE MERCHANDISE.

Even in the lowest priced KLINE WEARABLES, the smart and accepted style tendencies have been embodied.

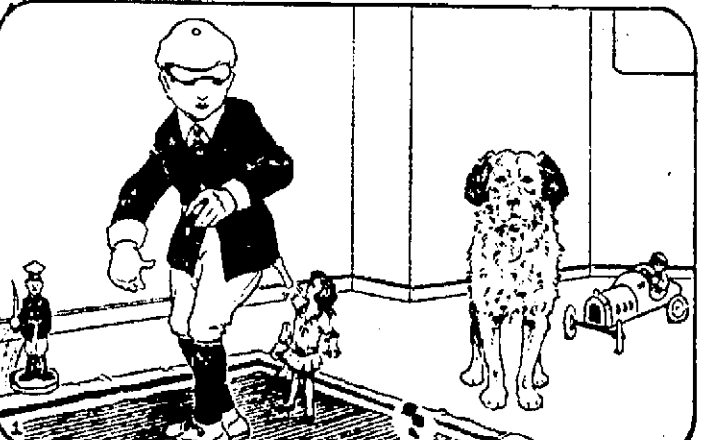

Inspired by an abiding faith in the fundamental soundness of Portsmouth's economic position and a firm belief that new LOWER PRICES would lead to increased demand for KLINE standard apparel, this store presents for your approval

JACK DAW'S ADVENTURES

When the movie was over Jack got up and started away. Then he felt someone tugging at his coat. Looking down, he saw Little Miss Dainty Doll, who had rescued him from the toyland automobile. "I've been looking all over for you," said the doll. "I want to take you to our dance."

Jack wondered how he could possibly dance with any of the tiny folks of toyland, but he followed Miss Dainty Doll, just the same. Then he was surprised when they came to a little platform on which stood several like the fancy dressed dolls. "Start the music," shouted Miss Dainty Doll.

Jack expected to hear the toyland band again but this time a pretty tune came out of a little music box which stood near by. Jack's old friend, the pullman, was turning the music box handle. "Now, a nice dance," shouted Miss Dainty, and the dancing dolls performed. (Continued.)

After a talk with the president, Representative Mondell, of Wyoming, Republican leader of the house, declared there were so many "difficulties in the way of an agreement that it was entirely possible the farm credit measures could not be finally written into law before March 4th, despite the fact that legislation on the subject had passed both the senate and house."

West Virginia News Briefs

FAIRMONT, W. VA.—Ideas are supposed to be valuable, but Vincent Deodon, Slav, brought one all the way from Europe and all it netted him was a cell in jail.

A baker by trade, he heard that moonshining was the thing in America. He realized that yeast was an ingredient in bread and moonshine, and then hit upon a scheme to ramouflage the tell-tale odor of a still.

Deodon opened a shop at Maple Point, near Barcksville, and erected a still on top of his back oven. For a long time more was aware of the still's existence save the Slav.

Then came reports of the extraordinary popularity of Deodon's bread. State police became curious.

Captain Walter W. White, eight troops, and Fred Wilkinson, federal dry agent, investigated and found the still. 200 gallons of wine, 450 gallons of mash and a quantity of other moonshine making supplies. Deodon waived examination before a federal commissioner and was held in the sum of $1,500 to the next federal court at Elkins.

FAIRMONT—A new form of punishment for becoming drunk has been devised by the mayor of Fairmont. When a man is convicted of having been drunk he is sent out to work on his fine and costs with garbage wagon crews.

ELKINS—Benjamin S. Dowdell has resigned as secretary of the local chamber of commerce to become traffic manager for the Hopewell, Va. manufacturers' association.

The complainant claimed that Radabaugh was the father of her illegitimate child born on April 17, 1917, and the boy, now nearly six years old, was an interesting exhibit in the case. The accused denied the paternity of the child and attempted to prove an alibi by showing that he was not in the company of the complainant at the time she claimed the child was begotten.

Wife Granted Divorce

Esta Rutherford, of Twelfth street, was granted a decree by Judge Thomas in Common Pleas court Monday, divorcing her from Ben Rutherford, address unknown, after she had presented proof showing that the defendant had another wife living in Jacksonville, Fla., at the time of her marriage to him in this city in December 1919. The wife also told the court after Rutherford deserted her in 1921 she received information that he had wedded a third time in Kentucky without going through the formality of obtaining a divorce. The plaintiff, who was represented by Attorney Harry Ball, was also given the custody of their minor child.

Daniels Trial Starts Tuesday

Bud Daniels, former Mt. Joy merchant, will be brought before Judge Thomas and a jury in Common Pleas court Tuesday morning on a charge of second degree murder for the killing of James H. Compton, at Mt. Joy, last October. The men were rival merchants at Mt. Joy and the altercation which resulted in the tragedy, it is said, grew out of Daniels permitting his pigs to trespass on Compton's premises. The shooting affray which occurred in the road near Compton's farm, both men were severely wounded. Daniels grabbed the revolver after he had been wounded twice and fired two shots into Compton's body which proved fatal to the latter when he succumbed a couple days later in a local hospital.

Nearly a hundred witnesses have been subpoenaed to appear in court to testify for and against the accused and the case promises to be hotly contested. Judge Blair will assist Prosecutor Skelton for the state and Attorney B. E. Kimble will defend the accused.

In her petition filed through Attorney L. A. Thompson, the wife says that Bates has cursed and called her vile names, accused her of unchastity and declares that on one occasion he threatened to kick her out of her bed, besides she claims that he failed and refused to support her during the time she lived with him. In addition to a divorce and alimony the plaintiff asks to be restored to her maiden name of Durrugh.

WOMAN HEADS THE HUNT FOR "HAMMER MURDERESS"

(Copyright 1923 By United Press) EL PASO, TEXAS, February 5.—(By the United Press.)—Catherine Crie, French beauty, and former Broadway chorus girl, today is leading the hunt below the Rio Grande for Clara Phillips, escaped hammer murderess. She desired the capture of the tiger woman so that she may be deported to American soil in exchange for Crie brothers held in Los Angeles jail for investigation following arrest on charge of auto stealing. The Crie brothers are Herbert, husband of Catherine, and brother Fernando. With Catherine they were arrested last November.

Concert Tuesday Night A Community Affair

On Tuesday night at 8:15 sharp the Community Chorus will present a very attractive program of sacred and secular music. The object of this concert, as shown by the price of the tickets is not a mercenary one, but an earnest desire to promote the artistic side of a commercial city, and to insure permanency in the life of such an excellent organization. The untemperamental nature of musicians makes it almost imperative that large and receptive audiences be had in order to produce the best results.

City Carries Gas Fight To Higher Court

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 5.—(By Associated Press.)—The City of Portsmouth today carried its fight against increased gas rates allowed by the State Utilities Commission, to the state supreme court.

Two suits, appealing from the commission's order fixing the rate at 45 cents per thousand feet gross and 40 cents net authorized to be charged by the United Fuel Gas Company and the Portsmouth Gas Company were filed in the supreme court today by City Solicitor Johnson. The city ordinance has fixed a rate for both companies at 35 cents gross and 30 cents net.

City council recently authorized Solicitor Johnson to prosecute appeals from the action of the Public Utilities Commission in fixing a rate for service in Portsmouth, and sustaining the appeals of The United Fuel Gas company and The Portsmouth Gas company from a city rate ordinance which set the rate at thirty cents a thousand feet net. The city claims the rate fixed by the commission was not justified on evidence submitted and that the commission refused to admit material evidence and allowed the company depreciation on surplus funds and intangible assets in determining the value of its property.

AMERICANS NEARING HOME SHORES

(Copyright 1923 By United Press) ABOARD S. S. ST. MIHIEL.—(Five hundred Miles from Home) February 5.—(By the United Press.)—(By Radio) —Plowing through stormy seas and buffeted by wintry gales, the transport St. Mihiel, which took so many doughboys over to France for the great war, today is bringing the last of them home.

Wednesday if all goes well, the St. Mihiel will slide into dock at Savannah in the teeth of the stormiest welcome the old south can produce.

The Eighth Infantry combat troop Colonel Walter T. Bates, of Dayton, O., commanding, will be the recipient of Georgia's enthusiastic welcome home.

The enthusiasm will be reciprocal.

Aside from the weather, which was exceedingly rough, the home voyage of the last of the army of occupation, has been pleasant and without incident.

"THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST"

Tuesday night by special request Rev. C. M. Sweeney of Nauvoo, will speak at the local United Brethren church on the Second Coming of Christ. She desired the capture of the tiger woman so that she may be deported to American soil in exchange for Crie brothers held in Los Angeles jail for investigation following arrest on charge of auto stealing. The Crie brothers are Herbert, husband of Catherine, and brother Fernando. With Catherine they were arrested last November.

Catherine put up bail in the form of a $10,000 diamond necklace and departed for Mexico for Philip Alquin, fugitive from Los Angeles, on a murder charge in exchange for her husband and his brother.

When the Alquin negotiations failed temporarily, Catherine got trace of Mrs. Phillips and determined to have her seized and exchanged in the place of Alquin.

Today she is co-operating with national confidential service men to capture Mrs. Phillips, who slipped away from Juarez when the trap was about to be sprung.

New Orders From Officials Stiffen Railroad Strike

DUESSELDORF, February 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—New orders from Berlin to the railroad men in the Rhineland and the Ruhr had the effect of stiffening the strike against the French and dispirited the hopes of a settlement that have been prevalent during the last few days.

By individual interviews the distribution of money, by promises and warnings, the German government agents are declared in authoritative quarters here to be doing their best to encourage the resistance, which had begun to weaken among the local functionaries and state employees.

Allowance For "Extra Work" Would Limit Immigrants

WASHINGTON, February 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—The number of immigrants eligible to admission to the United States, under the existing restriction act would be reduced by more than half under a section of a new immigration bill approved today by the house immigration committee.

Admissions under the proposed bill would be limited to 2 per cent of the number of foreign born individuals of any nationality resident in the United States as determined by the census of 1920.

His certificate need no introduction to the Portsmouth public as the Packard, Hudson and Essex are known wherever autos run, and that's about every place on this old terrestrial sphere of ours.

Howe is a jolly good fellow, a hustler from the word go and they say he eats, drinks and sleeps autos as it were. At any rate he is one of the best posted men in this section on motor cars. His particular hobby as it is to be expected is that group of three high class cars mentioned in this article. Just brush the subject to him and see what results you get.

THE MOVIES

"Just Tony"

It is of more than passing interest to note that one horse of all the horses in the country carries such an unusual individuality that plans are under way to use him as the model in a statutory piece typifying the spirit of the West.

And so it is with "Tony," the prized horse of Tom Mix, the Fox star. The beauty and intelligence of this animal, his loyalty to his master and his willingness to respond to any demand made on him, no matter how perilous, have gone far toward preserving the life of Tom Mix. And because "Tony" is all that the West expects of a horse — and that means everything — it has been planned to erect a statue to the Western horse, using "Tony" as the model. It will be a memorial not only to "Tony," but to the hundreds of thousands of horses that have helped to "make the West."

"Tony" is featured in Mix's best picture which is at the Lyric this week, starting Thursday.

W. J. FRIEL

Of course you know that this is W. J. Friel, that bustling Fifth street business man who has put the Dodge car right in the front rank in this part of the country. Always courteous and obliging, this man Friel is like the Indians used to say about Harrison when they called him "The Man Who Never Sleeps." Of course he sleeps but never when there is the slightest chance to place another of his fine cars.

Long in the automobile game, always a booster for Portsmouth, known for and knowing everybody, an optimist from start to finish, Friel is predicting 1923 will be a big year for the automobile industry.

And here's hoping he's understated it.

"TONY," TOM MIX'S FAMOUS STEED, TO BE STAR IN NEW FOX PRODUCTION

Tony, the beautiful chestnut horse, who has galloped under Tom Mix, the noted Fox screen star, through peril after peril, has just won his spurs — if such a title may be conferred upon a horse — and his name will blaze in electric lights all over the country in "Just Tony," which comes to the Lyric Theatre this week.

For once in his picture career, Tom Mix will play second fiddle, as it were to Tony, for the animal is to be the featured player in a screen production by Fox, entitled "Just Tony." Advertisement

Mr. Taggart To Take Charge Of Kline's Shoe Dep't.

An announcement of unusual interest, as it carries with it an addition to the retail facilities of the city, is that Mr. Charles Taggart, will come back to Portsmouth, and will assume charge of a new shoe department to be established at Kline's store, Gallia street. This department will be complete, in every way, and will carry an up-to-date line of men's, misses' and children's shoes. The well known Grant Flex-ated Arch shoe, which has been carried by Kline's, and the success of which has led to the addition of a complete shoe department, will be retained as a feature of the new department.

Mr. Taggart started in the shoe business with Hart & Hall in 1909. Later he went with Hall Bros., when they opened their store, having charge of the shoe department. His ability being recognized, he received a flattering offer from the Greater Shoe company, at Sixth and Race streets, Cincinnati, which he accepted, and since has been at the head of shoe departments in Cincinnati for nearly five years.

Mr. Taggart and his family have a wide circle of friends in this community, who will be glad to welcome them "back home". They will move here immediately and the new department will be installed as rapidly as possible.

BALKY MULE LEADS TO SHOOTING AFFRAY; DRIVER IS SHOT TWICE

VANCEBURG, Ky., Feb. 5.—(Special to the Times)—A balky mule that stopped near a home where the man of the house objected to loud talking is given as the cause of a shooting affray.

in Lewis county Sunday evening, Roy Springer, 18, being wounded, it is claimed by shots fired from a shot gun by Louis Blivens, 52, both are residents of Indian Creek, a mile from Stricklett P. O., about ten miles south of Vanceburg. Although Springer suffered two painful wounds in the hand and leg they are not considered dangerous. The sheriff of Vanceburg has a warrant for the arrest of Blivens and his arrest is expected soon.

According to the story that reaches Vanceburg from the scene of the trouble, about 5:30 Sunday evening a mule Springer was riding balked on the road near the Ravens home. Springer used loud language in his efforts to move the stubborn animal but his words fell on deaf ears as far as the mule was concerned. Such was not the case, however, with Blivens who came from his house and ordered, it is claimed, "run that mule on."

Springer is said to have told Blivens that he could not make him go to which Blivens is alleged to have replied, "I'll make you do it."

Springer claims that Blivens then went to the house, secured a shot gun and fired on him, the greater portion of the small shot lodging in his hand. The young man claims that Blivens was not satisfied with this and told his wife to hold a lamp so he could see Springer. The wife held the light outside the door and Springer says that Blivens then fired again, the shot this time lodging in his leg.

Springer managed to get to a neighbor's house and Dr. C. E. Stout of Vanceburg was called to attend him. The physician found the wounds painful but not of a dangerous nature. Both men are well known in Vanceburg.

YOUTHS CONFESS TO ROBBERIES; BOUND OVER AT CHILLICOthe

LEXINGTON, Ky., February 5.—Alleged confessions of a series of robberies in Cleveland and other Ohio communities by two of the quartet of youths arrested by police in a hotel at Huntington, W. Va., may have cleared up the mysteries surrounding these depredations. A 16-year-old Perry Hunter, 18 years old, son of Samuel Hunter, of Lexington, and William Sigant, of Cleveland, two other youths held by the Huntington officers, according to word received here.

The two, giving their names to confessions said by the police to have been made, are Louis Ellen, 21 years old, and John Metz, 19, Cleveland, believed by Huntington police to be wanted in Cleveland and Chillicothe, Ohio.

Included in the list of robberies, police say have been cleared by confessions, are the looting of a bakery shop in Cleveland, when the two made a getaway with $38.00, after a running fight with police of that city, and the robbery of a pawn shop in Chillicothe, where they obtained watches, guns and $18 in cash.

VAL of PARADISE

by Thigie E. Roe

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JOHN HANNON, wealthy ranch owner, his blind wife, BELLE, and their beautiful daughter, VAL, live happily together in Hannon's wonderful ranch home, Paradise. Redstar is the king of the Red Brood of horses owned by the master of the ranch. In a game at HENNEFELL'S store, VELANTRIE from the Border wins LOLA SANCHEZ, who offers herself as stake for BRIDEMAN, man of mystery. Velantrie sends Lola home to her father. At a Fourth of July celebration dance Lola challenges Velantrie to dance with her. A young suitor of Lola's, in a fit of jealousy, shoots at Velantrie. Val drops a hand on the boy's shoulder in time to cause the bullet to go astray. Velantrie asks Val to shake hands with him. GO ON WITH THE STORY "Dad," said the girl straightly, "what's up?"

COUGH KEMP'S BALSAM

"A lot," he answered grimly, "this damn country'll say no more that John Hannon's magic works—that he don't lose no stock."

Val's hands on the pommel suddenly gripped hard.

"What?" she said, "come on, What's happened?"

"Rustlers," he said, "at last. The Redstar's gone."

Slowly she slid out of her saddle. Slowly the color drained from her dusky cheeks, leaving them ashen.

She stood for a moment leaning against Redcloud, as if her knees had run to water.

Then she went drunkenly toward the broad stone step and dropped upon it. She covered her face with her hands and sat still as the dead.

She did not sob and no tears crept through her shaking fingers. She felt as if a knife had been driven deep into her heart—she could not breathe and her throat ached.

John Hannon stood and watched her, his face working.

"Buck up," he said at last sharply, "are you my daughter?"

"Yes, sir," she answered thickly, "yes—sir."

"Then be a man."

The girl rose unsteadily and turned her gray face toward the house—but every nerve in her was crying with her loss.

CHAPTER IX
The Light of Dawning Fires

PARADISE hummed like a hive of bees. Perly and Siff were all for saddling up and titting out, twin Galahads, on Redstar's trail, but Briston put a stop to that in his sane and quiet way.

"You ain't noways sure that you could get him, once you found him, fer whoever took him knows all about him. You can bet on that, an' ain't a-takin' no chances on losin' him. An' furthermore, he didn't leave no trail."

Which last was very true. Neither Redstar nor those who took him had left the faintest trace of their flight though the theft had been committed from the very heart of Paradise itself, from the small corral behind the big one in which the king was always locked at night.

"Wrapped his feet," said the boss briefly and grimly, "an' tied his nose, mebbe, so's he wouldn't make no noise."

"But fer the love of Pote, John," said Perly, miserably, "where was there worthless vaqueros, Jose an' Armas an' Miguel? An' where were you?"

The boss looked hard at his rider, but the boy's eyes were only earnest and concerned.

"The boys were all here—asleep."

"My son," he said at last, "this is Val Hannon, the sweetest, purest, truest thing in womanflesh I have ever known, except her mother."

The girl flushed and turned her dark eyes up to him.

"And this, Val," he said, taking the stranger's hand to place her own therein, "is Don Velantrie, stranger to the rangeland, sometime of the Border."

The two young creatures did not smile, for gravity seemed to wait upon their meetings. Instead they looked into each other's eyes with a breathless seeming of intensity, and without volition their hands clasped eagerly.

Father Hillaire, wise in the reading of signs, saw that look of dawning wonder, and his heart contracted.

"We've met before, padre," said Velantrie, quietly, "I am glad to say, for if we hadn't I should not be here this hour."

And he smiled then, straight down at Val, while his two blue eyes studied hers, first one and then the other.

The girl drew her hand away and with a word of excuse passed on into the house to find Josephina.

Velantrie turned and looked after her.

When she was gone from sight he looked at Father Hillaire.

"Padre," he said gravely, "that's why I came to Refugio today—to ask you who she was—for she saved my life at the dance at Santa Leandra."

And he proceeded to tell him of that wild hour and its culmination.

"It was splendid action," he finished admiringly, "swift and keen and timed to the second. If she were a man she'd be a good rider, a good lover and a good shot."

"She is all three," said the priest, and with a sigh he gazed out across the spreading plains toward the south.

Presently he seemed to come back from the infinitude of that far gaze suppose, though Jose was supposed to be on guard. That's what a man gets by trustin' his help too damned much."

Jose, meek and quiet, his dark eyes downcast, passed at that moment and heard the biting words, but his gentle brown face did not change.

"An' as for me," went on John Hannon, "I slept like a log an' never heard a hoof."

There were many days thereafter when Val drooped about the deep rooms like a wilted flower, sick with the first grief of her life. And Belle Hannon became the comforter, the martial staff of courage. The sweet and gentle woman was aflame with anger. All her pride in Hannon supremacy, all her love for the master of Paradise, were outraged and aroused.

"Val," she said to the girl, "I know you are suffering with the loss, that you loved Redstar—but think of your father."

"If you are sick over this what do you think he feels? He who is so proud, who has been set apart like, who has been invincible? While others lost on every side he has been inviolate. None dared to strike at Paradise before. Now the invincibility is broken. He has been insulted like any common rancher, the thing he prized above all his possessions stolen from his very door! We must be brave for his sake, so don't let him see you fret like this."

And Val knew she must conquer the feeling sooner or later, and she began to long for the comforting peace of Refugio and Father Hillaire.

So at last, on a golden day when the little winds were still and soft white clouds floated lazily in the high blue vault, she saddled the gelding and went away.

And then she rode to the gate of Refugio where Father Hillaire stood, though with so strange a trouble on his face that she forgot her own.

She swung from her saddle to take his hand, searching his features. And then, over his shabby shoulder, she looked once more into the face of the black-haired stranger, for Velantrie stood beside the table in the padre's garden.

But Father Hillaire moved between them and drew her eyes to his own. "My daughter," he whispered, "do not mention loss or trouble here."

Wonderingly Val nodded and followed him along the wall while Bonifacio took her rein and led her horse away.

Many times in his long life had Father Hillaire stood between two fires, and searched his good heart for the better thing to do. He stood there now as he led Val Hannon to the man at the table.

What vital things might happen from this hour—what startling truths slip out to unleash tragedy!

He held the girl's hand and looked at the man, and his gentle eyes were deep with trouble.

"My son," he said at last, "this is Val Hannon, the sweetest, purest, truest thing in womanflesh I have ever known, except her mother."

The girl flushed and turned her dark eyes up to him.

"And this, Val," he said, taking the stranger's hand to place her own therein, "is Don Velantrie, stranger to the rangeland, sometime of the Border."

Hair Often Ruined By Careless Washing

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Multisided coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Multisided in a cup of glass with a little warm water is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub the Multisided in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Multisided coconut oil shampoo at any pharmacy, it is very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Multisided—Advertisement.

And smiled at Velantrie, a sad crinkling of his features.

"My son," he said, "she is the flower of the rangeland, glad, wholesome, high souled, born to peace and the even way of honor and of happiness. I'd lay down this old body of mine to keep sorrow from her sweet heart, tears from her pretty eyes."

Velantrie stirred, fiddled with his hat brim on the table and reached into the pocket of his flannel shirt for a cigar.

"Her face has haunted me since I first looked up and saw her with her hand on the boy's shoulder and her eyes blazing—haunted me with an odd familiarity, as if somewhere, sometime, I had seen those clean-cut features, those narrowed, lighted eyes. I have puzzled over it ever since, padre. Where have I seen this girl?"

"You have not seen her," said Father Hillaire quickly, "for I have known her from birth and she has never been beyond Santa Leandra to the north and west, a day's ride south. And you are new to this country. You have never seen her, my son."

Fong as Father Hillaire was of the man before him there was in his voice a subtle note of warning, and Velantrie caught it instantly. His dark face flushed and he rose gracefully and held out his hand.

"I know, padre," he said straightly, "I know. It is not for Velantrie—sometime of the Border—sworn to blood—to raise his eyes to such virgin flesh. And he does not. It is like the Church door—forbidden. . . . But sometimes the far sight of it—like the Church door—brings a certain wistfulness."

"Then why not change?" cried the priest eagerly. "It is never too late! The Church, the woman—they both forgive."

But Velantrie shook his black head and his mouth hardened.

"For me it is," he said, "I have set myself a task, as you know, and my life is given to it. Not till I have found and killed—"

But with an exclamation Father Hillaire laid a hand across his lips, for Val Hannon was coming down the sanded walk with Maria's baby on her shoulder. She made a wondrous picture in her slim youth and her dusky color, with the soft look of universal motherhood drooping the lashes on her smiling eyes.

"East Is West," Great Play At Sun Tonight

Tonight, at 8:15 p. m., starts the great stage success, "East Is West," the spoken drama, by the Jack Ball Stock Co. The advance sales for this play indicate a capacity house tonight and every other night during the showing of Samuel Shipman's and John B. Hymer's great success. There are however plenty of good and desirable seats left for all performances. Matinees are given tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday.

"East Is West" is world famous. It ran for two years in New York, where thousands witnessed it, and was afterwards produced in London. The mention of the title is synonymous in the theatrical world with success in the biggest sense of the word.

Among the characters in the play, now famous the world over, are Ming-Toy, the little Chinese girl about whom the story is woven; Billy Benson, the American boy, who falls in love with her, and Charlie Yang, an Americanized Chinaman, and one of the most unusual characters that the stage has ever had.

"East Is West," is filled with the element that the stage calls atmosphere. It swings from the warm and mysticism of the Far East to the equally fascinating color of San Francisco's Chinatown and then to the home of a typical, wealthy American family on the coast of California.

MUTT AND JEFF

It Was A Silly Bet In The First Place

BY BUD FISHER

Golf Champs Seldom Repeat

A golf title is the most fickle thing in all sports. In baseball it is not unusual to see a pennant winner to repeat. Likewise in tennis. For a number of years Bill Tilden has won his superiority on the courts without being hard pressed.

In fistic circles, champions retain their titles for years. Johnny Kilbane has been the possessor of the featherweight crown for over 10 years.

In golf it is a different story. Not in 10 years has an entry been able to repeat in either the British or United States amateur or open championships.

Of the American golfers, Jerome Travers is the one outstanding star in the matter of repeating. He won the U. S. amateur in 1907 and 1908, and did the same thing in 1912 and 1913.

Billy Evans Says

Wrestling, as a sport, is enjoying a big revival in the college world.

The "Big Ten" of the west, as well as most of the leading eastern institutions, are paying much attention to wrestling as a sport.

For a time, the mat game received only a lukewarm reception, but that attitude has changed entirely. In many of the larger schools from 500 to 1000 students take part in wrestling events which are graded to meet the physical possibilities of the various candidates.

In recent years the football coaches have come out strongly in favor of wrestling as a college sport. It develops there is a method in their madness. Wrestling makes for better football. This is particularly true of forwards.

There is the case of Jim McMillan of Illinois. A good lineman a year ago, McMillan took up wrestling, and became the most-talked-about player in the middle west last season. Since the close of the football season McMillan has gone back to wrestling and continues to show great improvement in the tricks of the mat game. Such being the case it is only logical to assume that he will be an even better football player in the fall.

In the east no lineman is more feared than "Tiny" McMahon of Penn State, who measures 6 feet 7 inches. McMahon is a great wrestler, also an equally great forward. In 1921, when Penn State made three touchdowns against Harvard, it was through gaping holes made by McMahon that Killinger and Wilson filtered through for big gains.

It is an easy matter to figure how wrestling can work to the advantage of a lineman in football. Wrestling demands co-ordination of the arms and legs. That trait is also most essential in football. The tricks of the wrestling game give the lineman who is familiar with them a distinct advantage over his opponent. And the beauty of it is that the tricks of the mat game are usually sanctioned by the football officials as perfectly legal.

All of which explains why every football coach, the country over, is advising his football players to take up wrestling—the linemen in particular.

South Webster Is Now Claiming Victory

South Webster boys are claiming a 24 to 22 victory over the Hamilton boys at Hamilton Saturday night, although Hamilton reported the same 23 to 22 in their favor.

The 23 to 22 score was announced by the Hamilton scorekeeper at the close of the game but as the scorebooks kept by both teams did not tally they were checked and it was found that South Webster had niggled a field goal that the Hamilton scorekeeper did not count. Coach Foster of Webster was the official in charge and he counted every basket made although a basket made by each team is in question on account of the ball hitting a low ceiling.

Gibbons Merits

Dempsey Bout

Tommy Gibbons is too small to fight Jack Dempsey. So declares Chairman William McDonough of the New York State Boxing Commission.

It is to laugh! Dempsey wasn't too small to fight Willard. Bob Fitzsimmons wasn't too small for Jeffries, and so on down the line. Old Joe Walcott used to fight opponents 50 pounds heavier and a foot taller, and still handed them a lacing.

Personal reasons must enter into such a decision. A glance at the statistics of the two fighters is ample proof.

Dempsey weighs only about 20 pounds more than Gibbons. The champion's height is six feet one inch, while Gibbons is a quarter of an inch shorter. In all other measurements Gibbons compares very favorably with Dempsey. The figures certainly don't bear out the justice of the decision that prevents Gibbons from a chance at the title.

COMMITTEE WILL NOT TAMPER WITH PRESENT BASEBALL RULES

BY GERGE CHADWICK

(Copyright 1923 by The Times)
NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Schedule meetings for the Major Leagues are ten days away. At these meetings it has been customary to hold the sessions of the Rules committee but as no one so far has asked rule changes the presumption is that the game which was good enough for 1922 is to be good enough for 1923.

Possibly it is as well. Games in which the rules frequently change are not as popular as those in which the freedom from change is long lived although it is noticeable that the younger American is more money under rules than the young Englishman.

The owners of some of the ball clubs have been asked if they would like to see the rules amended but if they were not non-committal they were downright opposed to it. Their attention has been called to the advisability of permitting the two new eastern fields to start with a free area and no handicap of ground rules, and this has also given them the thought that it may be best after all to begin everything in 1923 without change in the rules.

There will be no fooling with the pitching regulations. The little movement, quietly started, to get rosin, soapstone and a few other powders into baseball again will not get much further than it has gone. Two men quite prominent in baseball were in favor of it and each had an axe to grind. The moment that rosin and soapstone get a place again in baseball, every pitcher and a few other ingredients will follow and in time the pitcher will be back to where he was three years ago when he made the ball the traveling agent for a chemist's shop.

It is reported that forbidden "dope" was used in the games played last year. In spite of the fact that opposing players are posing always as detectives and that umpires are constantly on the watch, it is almost certain that rosin got into the game and that soapstone played a slight part in some of the pitching.

There is no necessity of allowing the number of balls or strikes to decrease or increase batting. If the total number of balls were fewer than now it would surely be no less than three and if the minimum got down to three there would be fewer hits, perhaps, but there would be more runners on the bases sent there through the physical expertise of their own.

If the penalty were removed from hitting the batter with a pitched ball, the batter would have a host of pitchers coming the batter back from the plate until the game would resemble the Coney Island amusement in which you get a cigar if you beat a scoreman with a baseball.

The zoning argument for home runs or possible home runs came as near being a reality as any rule change. It isn't necessary to pass at new rule to bring that change about if desired by only one league. It is an open question whether it is not possible for home clubs to establish zone rules if they wish to do so and manufacture home runs to suit their personal convenience but the consent of all of the clubs of the league would have to be obtained to put it through.

Just a chance exists that the matter of paying high bonuses to college players for signing their names to the contract will come up. Off hand it seems as if that is a matter which belongs to the individual club. If owners of baseball outfits have become such poor business men that they are willing to pay $5,000 to have an untried player sign his name to a contract, the matter of fact part of the world will quickly think of the old adage of a fool and his money soon parted.

Benton's Case And Baseball Watchdogs

BY HENRY L. FARRELL

(United Press Sports Editor)
NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(United Press)—Every time anything like the present Rube Benton case comes to light, the mistakes made in the days before Commissioner Landis took charge of baseball are made more and more striking.

The tendency to use the whitewash brush instead of the iron rod is responsible for every mess into which organized baseball has found itself. Figuring that some safety rested in silence and that the interest of business demanded a covering up, organized baseball took the attitude that the Hal Chase, Heinie Zimmerman, Lee Magee, Benton and other cases were none of the fans' business and they allowed the public to think as it wished.

So in 1919 it is not surprising that the "Black Sox" thought—"We can get away with this. Even if we do get caught, they won't let it get out."

Beh Johnson has always aspired to the role of the watchdog of baseball, the guardian of the grand national pastime, always on duty to watch and safeguard the sport.

Since he was the first to raise the roar publicly about the return of Rube Benton to the major league, Ban probably thinks his duty nobly done in this instance.

In advancing any claims for honor and glory in this case, however, Ban might explain why it was that it took him three years to complain, that Benton made a bet on the Cincinnati Reds in the 1919 world's series.

Some day when he is in a reminiscent mood, Ban also might explain why it was that the White Sox scandal was never made public by him until it looked like the Sox were going to beat out the Cleveland Indians for the 1920 pennant, when Ban had known about the scandal for a year.

Ban and John Heydler, national league president, and Commissioner Landis might also explain how they can allow Benton to play in a minor league without protest, if he is barred from the majors.

SEEKS STATE OFFICE

ASHLAND, Ky., February 5.—J. Garrett Rucker, Judge of the Boyd County Court, today issued a statement declaring himself to be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Secretary of State. Mr. Rucker, who is 36 years old, is the youngest man who ever held the position of County Judge.

RICKEY BANKING ON RECRUITS

According to information from St. Louis, Branch Rickey's new contract calls for the largest salary paid any manager in the National, with the exception of McGraw of the Giants.

Rickey has made good in the Mound City and if two or three of his recruits deliver this season, his team will again be in the pennant chase. His greatest blow was the death of his hard-hitting and hard-working outfielder, Austin D. McElroy.

P. H. S. WILL INSIST THAT NO MORE SECOND STRING TEAMS BE SENT HERE

Friday night when Coach Brinkerhoff of the Huntington basketball five trotted his team out on the floor Coach Harry Wagner of the local squad inquired of the visiting coach as to why he did not bring the regulars here for a game.

The excuse given by Brinkerhoff was that the regulars were ill and unable to make the trip. Their illness must have been easy to overcome for everyone of them participated in the big game with Parkersburg at Huntington Saturday afternoon, Huntington winning 32 to 25. Frost, star football and court player was the star of the big contest. Foster was the other forward for Huntington.

With Haeberlin at center and Meisel and Hensley at the guard positions, these five constituting the Huntington regulars, Parkersburg won from Huntington at Parkersburg this season, 24 to 23. Haeberlin Saturday tossed in 16 free throws which means that many fouls were uncorked during the struggle. Twenty-six fouls were called on Parkersburg and their two star forwards were banished from the game.

The sending of a second string team here this year may mean that P. H. S. will next season insert a clause in her contract with Huntington that only the regulars shall make the trip to this city.

Firpo Coming Back For Big Money

BY HENRY L. FARRELL

(United Press Sports Editor)
NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(United Press)—Almost like "Tattered Topper," the poor little hero of the paper-back novel, who rose from an ash barrel to a palace, Luis Firpo, South American giant, is coming back to New York as somebody.

Just a year ago, Firpo slipped into New York from the Argentine looking for a meal. He thought he could fight and be wanted some of the big money he heard was being passed out to fighters in this country. Firpo must know then. He couldn't get matches and his money was low, so he had to train in a cellar. Finally he got on a card in Jersey with Sailor Maizied and he got $150 for knocking out the Sailor.

That helped him a little and he got a $1,000 match with Joe McCann. He knocked out McCann and he got $5,000 match in Brooklyn against Jack Herman. He knocked out Herman and went home, to South America with his earnings.

Now Firpo is coming back and he'll be talking in large thousands. He's a "card" at the most opportune time when the heavyweight class is coming into its greatest period of activity in years.

Firpo is signed to meet Bill Brennan in Madison Square Garden in March and he must be getting $25,000 as his bid, if he is getting a cent.

A fortunate young man is Luis Firpo. He knocked out Sailor Maizied, Joe McCann, Jack Herman and then polished off poor Jim Tracey, the Australian, who was so poor in this country that he couldn't get a match. Now, after this great start, Firpo is being groomed for a crack at Dempsey.

Firpo is a "card." He's a giant and a cave-man in looks and actions. He can hit like a locomotive and he can take a tremendous wallop. Perhaps he has the makings of a great fighter, but right now it is the circus appeal that is pushing him to the top.

When he returned from South America, George Lawrence, Tracey's manager said he thought Firpo would make a good match with Dempsey. Of course, any manager who has one of his boys knocked over, likes to magnify the ability of the knock-over. Lawrence, however, said that Firpo had improved greatly since he went back home. He took two or three sparring partners down with him and he has been working hard.

He suggested that two or three build-up matches with Gibbons, Johnson, Brennan or Willard would put him right in line for a title bout with Dempsey.

Team Practicing

Baseball practice is underway at Ohio State University. Coaches "St. John and Trautman are looking especially hard at anything that looks like a pitching prospect. "Fogge" Workman, far-famed finger of forward passes, may step in as iron man of the Buckeye hurling corps when the diamond season gets under way. New men must be developed for more than half the positions on the team. The Buckeyes will play 23 games, winding up with a trip to Minnesota, including games enroute.

Rickey Has New Place To Send His Recruits

The acquisition of the controlling interests in the Syracuse club of the International League and the Fort Smith club of the Western Association by the St. Louis Cardinals has tied Manager Branch Rickey of the Cardinals to announce that those clubs will not be "dumping grounds" for cast-offs, but will be proving grounds and training schools for recruits.

By this method, it is believed enough material will be obtained each season to make the Cards pennant contenders. About $75,000 has been expended by the Cardinal management for recruits, it was said.

What Is The Status Of Benton? Public Should Be Informed

BY NEA SERVICE.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 5.—What is the status of Pitcher "Rube" Benton, last year with the St. Paul club of the American Association?

Several years ago, when baseball was shocked to its very foundation by the world series scandal and other similar happenings, Benton was quietly dropped from the roster of the New York Giants.

No particular reason was assigned for the action of the New York club in allowing Benton, a mighty good left hander, to drift out of the majors.

Pitching for St. Paul last year, Benton had a big year of it. With a death of southpaws in the major, the Cincinnati club elected to bring Benton back to the big show.

When it seemed as if the deal was about to be closed, President Johnson of the American League came forth with evidence in the case that held up the deal.

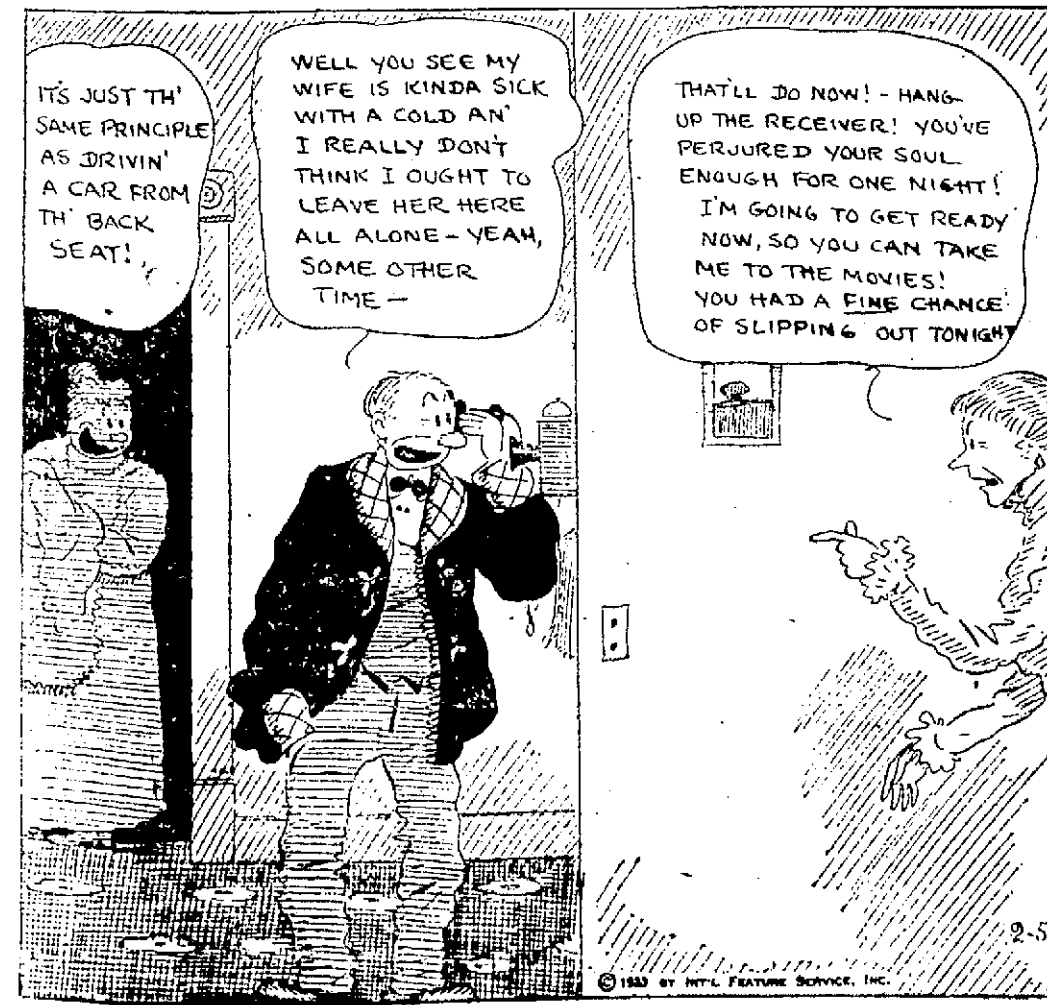

Now it is said the Cincinnati club has decided to let the matter drop since both major league presidents have decreed Benton is undesirable.

What's the big idea? If Benton can't play in the majors he should not be permitted to play in the minors. If tolerated by the minors, he certainly has the right to advance to the majors.

Come on with the inside stuff, if there is any.

WINTER!

DEPEND on the Canadians to hand the world a jolt. They sprung a little surprise or two for Fritz at Vimy Ridge and sundry other places, and the world looked on with respect. Now they are telling that entire respectful sphere that Canada is a great place in winter-time, and that nothing in the world is so heal-giving as good, rousing winter sports.

Canada, with an area slightly greater than that of the United States, and a population about as big as that of the three biggest cities in the states, is going at the thing in a national way, and of course the big drive for winter tourists is directed toward the United States.

It would be fine, if the kids didn't have to stay in school this winter, to pack the family off for Winnipeg or Montreal and enjoy all the tobogganing, snowshoeing, skiing and other delights those places afford. But like most of the desirable things in this world, to most localities the problem is a simple one, and need involve no expensive trip.

Winter air is fine for everybody, snowballing—not packed too hard; remember—is a good old sport and there really has been nothing invented which quite takes the place of the old-fashioned bob-sled, filled with straw and youth. Those who cannot do better, at least can just stick their noses out of doors more frequently than they have been doing, and with chest up, arms swinging, heart glad, realize that summer is not the only season in which nature provides a treasure of enjoyment.

NEARING DEBT AGREEMENT

THE adjournment of the conference on the British debt and the return to London of Chancellor Baldwin is due not so much to any breakdown in the negotiations or lack of agreement between the British and American representatives in principle as to the need for parliamentary and congressional approval. Here the American commissioners are strictly limited by congress to payment of definite interest and period. The British government, now preparing its budget, must take counsel as to the domestic politics involved in agreeing to making the payments demanded.

As practical men the financial advisers of the two governments have, it is understood, reached a negotiable conclusion as to the financial possibilities. It remains to win over the support of the political factors. In America, amendment of the congressional resolution regarding the terms will be essential; in England, agreement as to the taxation and other fiscal changes the payments will necessitate. The hope that the British reply may be received in time to lay the matter before the present session of congress is important, because of President Harding's unwillingness to summon the new congress before next December, meaning either that much delay in the debt settlement or an extra session, alike to be avoided if possible.

THE VANISHING HORSE

THE president of the Chicago board of trade is interested in the disappearance of the horse, because the shrinkage from 3,500,000 in the cities in 1910 to half that number in 1920, and the farmers turning to tractors, trucks and autos has, he says, cost the producers about $30,000,000 a year in reduced prices for oats and probably a like amount for hay.

But while he does not expect to see the horse come back to the cities, except for short hauls, he thinks "the small size farmers who invested in big power tractors" are likely to return to the draught horse, whose prices are advancing. Let him cheer up; the comparative depression in the oats market is hardly to be considered in contrast with the farmers' gain from gasoline power. These disturbances following new inventions have had a way of righting themselves.

Violation of some of the laws of nature carries with it a life sentence.

New York-Day-By-Day

BY O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—A page from the diary of a modern Samuel Pepys: Up and in a benzine buggy to the Bronx zoo to see a baby giraffe, newly born, and then to Verne Porter's for breakfast, a filling meal of hot cakes and syrup.

Back and labored all the morning and to the Stage Door Inn for lunch where came Damon Runyon, the sport scribbler, and talk of idle fellows of the town who are dancing attendance on elderly matrons and thereby living in plenty. A morally decadent age, we agreed.

For a walk with my dog and met Ring Lardner, loaded down with golf clubs and luggage, to train for Florida. And on my way, fraught with misgivings at my low estate and envious of this one and that one popping out to pleasure.

Dined at mother-in-law's and then away to the play to see Pecky Wood sing and dance and saw there Chandler Christy, the artist, Vincent Astor, Daniel Frohman and many others. So home and to bed.

There is something excessively irritating about the new scheme to aid prohibition enforcement. In every restaurant or supper club of standing in town a uniformed policeman is on duty. He looks forlorn and bored for he knows his presence is unwelcome and is often an insult to respectable law abiding people. In very few instances have the officers made arrests and, wherever they do, it usually winds up in a free for all battle, endangering the lives of many. The officer himself feels a certain sense of disgrace, for he is changed each night to a different case on the theory that he may be corrupted.

Speaking of prohibition, it was just ten years ago that a raucous roar reverberated up and down the Dazzling Gulch. Jim Regan's Hotel Knickerbocker had just raised the price of a cocktail from 15 to 20 cents. Broadway called it a "black-jacking" procedure. Picture it!

Zoe Beckley, the adorable "queen of Dark Row" so called "sob sisters," is home from a globe trotting trip. And she thinks old Broadway looks mighty good. She spent Christmas alone 3,186 miles from Broadway and, of all places, in Paris. The city was deserted for the holiday and Mrs. Beckley drove over to the left bank of the Seine and there, at a corner table under the pitying eye of the waiter, she ate her Christmas dinner and tried to be gay.

Dr. Cone was the guest of honor at the Dutch Treat Club—an organization of writers and artists that meets weekly at Browne's old chop house across from the Metropolitan. The little French doctor is at all times earnest and, after he had explained some of his methods, he began to read a number of testimonials from patients who had been healed. The next speaker was a comedian with the Folies. He said he had a testimony of healing from a visiting Texan. It read:

Dear Sir:—I was in New York two weeks ago and for two succeeding nights I took a couple of Folies chorus girls to dinner. I'm cured.

Fifth Avenue, after all, has a Main Street flavor. Traffic was stopped and clerks left their posts the other afternoon to see a fight between two German police dogs. It was a spectacular fight and to the death—one can't be dying before the police could separate them.

GOOD MANNERS

Guests arriving at a public dance should greet the patronesses with a friendly smile and word of two, as at a private affair, but it is not required that they should offer their hands to be shaken unless the patronesses take the initiative. The guests may stay for a dance or two, or for the evening, as they please. On leaving, it is unnecessary for them to seek out the patronesses to say goodbye.

The Whirligig

Senator John Sharo Williams said at a University of Virginia reunion: "The post-war whirligig is responsible for many strange things. We may now find, for example, college girls in our kitchens and millinery in our Louis Seize drawing rooms. 'The door bell of a war profiteer's mansion rang the other day, and the profiteer's wife closed her Laura Jean Libbey."

"Well, who is it?" she demanded from her chaise longue. The parlor maid—Vassar. "21—answered laughily: "A mendicant is in the hall, madam."

"Well, tell him to beat it," said the profiteer's wife, crossly. "We ain't got nothin' to mend."

Airing Her Secret

One evening I was to have a young man caller. As I didn't have a new dress and couldn't wear my old one, I finally succeeded in borrowing sister's.

I was all ready and sitting in the parlor when he arrived. He at once remarked about my new dress. Everything went lovely until my little sister came in and said, "Oh, did I tell you you could wear her dress?"—Exchange.
